

FIFTH SUNDAY OF EASTER

FROM: DOCAT

The Common Good, Personhood, Solidarity, Subsidiarity The Principles of the Church's Social Teaching

94. What does the common good mean for the poor?

The poor must be at the heart of the Church, or else the Church betrays her mission. In Gaudium Et Spes the Second Vatican Council speaks about a preferential option for the poor (GS 1). From this results the central social obligation of the individual and of the whole Church to take care of the needs especially of those who are on the peripheries of society. The Beatitudes in the Sermon on the Mount, Jesus' own poverty, and his loving care for the poor show us the way. Standing up for marginalized people is a direct command of Jesus: "As you did it to one of the least of these my brethren, you did it to me" (Mt 25:40). Jesus also warns, however, against the ideological notion that we can completely do away with poverty in the world (Mt 26:11). Only at Christ's Second Coming will this be possible.

95. What does the principle of subsidiarity involve?

Every societal task is always assigned in the first place to the smallest possible group that can perform it. A group at a higher level may assume responsibility only if the smaller association is not capable of resolving the problem. If the smaller association needs help, however, the higher level must help. This arrangement is summed up in the Principle of Subsidiarity and the Offer of Assistance. For example, if a family has problems, the State can intervene only if the family or the parents are overburdened and cannot resolve them. This principle of subsidiarity is supposed to strengthen the freedom of the individual and of groups and associations and prevent too much centralization. Private initiative should be encouraged, because being able to help oneself is an important component of the dignity of the human person. The principle of subsidiarity was first formulated in 1931, in the Encyclical Quadragesimo Anno by Pope Pius XI.

SHARELIFE

Living the Gospel by helping newcomers to Canada
Angie moved to Canada to marry a man she met online. He was not who he seemed; she endured emotional and physical abuse. While he was at work, she started attending language classes at Catholic Crosscultural Services. Staff at CCS connected her with a settlement worker in the women's program. Angie received the support she needed to exit her violent relationship and live independently, free from abuse. Angie is one of over 3,000 clients helped annually by CCS programs funded by ShareLife.
